ABOUT LENTON HOUSE

In 1920 Lenton House became the property of John Campbell Boot, son of Boots founder Jesse Boot. The Georgian mansion was initially used as John's family home, and after John became chairman of the Boots Pure Drug and Associates Company during the 1930s the grounds were used for pioneering horticultural research projects. By 1944 much of the estate was being used for experimental purposes and was known as Lenton Research Station. In 1946, John Campbell Boot sold the estate to the Boots Company for £40,000 and the house became the company guesthouse.

Lenton House is still owned by Boots today, and is an ideal place to host business meetings, seminars and training conferences in surroundings steeped in history. Despite being set within the university of Nottingham grounds, Lenton House is a haven of tranquillity, surrounded by 20 acres of beautiful gardens. The long driveway means the house can't be seen from the road, and creates a secluded, peaceful country feel only minutes from the Beeston site. A wide range of meeting packages are on offer, as well as bespoke functions to suit any requirements.

OUR SERVICES

Our dedicated team have years of experience in offering the highest levels of service, and you can be assured that every element of your meeting is perfectly planned and handled on the day. Your delegates will receive a warm welcome, can learn a little about the history of Lenton House, help themselves to a wide variety of teas and coffees, and enjoy the beautiful surroundings.

We offer a range of delegate packages to suit any requirements and can put together bespoke meetings or evening events at your request. Our meeting packages will include light refreshments available throughout, and you have the option of breakfasts, lunches, afternoon teas and dinners, all prepared in house by our talented chef.

The beautiful gardens are available to delegates throughout the day, offering a unique outdoor breakout space if required, or simply the opportunity to enjoy lunch in the sunshine.

OUR MEETING ROOMS

We have two main large meeting rooms in Lenton House – the Millbrook Boardroom and the Plaisance Dining Room. Both can be set up in a variety of ways to suit your requirements; boardroom style, cabaret style or theatre style. In addition we have two smaller rooms capable of holding more intimate meetings – the John Boot Room and the St Helier Lounge. When making your booking, the team can advise on the most suitable room and layout to suit your requirements.

All rooms offer beautiful views across the house grounds, and despite the traditional décor, are well equipped in modern conveniences. As you would expect, we offer full Wi-Fi throughout, and are connected on the WBA network for ease of transition from Boots main site. We have large monitors with Teams setup in all meeting rooms, plenty of charge points for your own equipment, and the support of both staff in house and Boots IT who can assist before your event to make sure that you are all set up and ready to go.

We also provide whiteboards, flipcharts, blue boards, stationery and any other business essentials you may require; just let us know what you need before the meeting or throughout the day and we will make it happen.
